15. [REDACTED] LIAISON Paul Janarov, Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress, called asking for a phone number of an analyst who could give him a briefing on the political situation in Lebanon. I asked if he was seeking classified information and he said no. I then suggested he contact the Department of State and he said he already had. I then asked if there was something in particular he was after and he said no, but he would think about it and maybe get back to us.
